To enter, your artwork must have been created in the last 12 months and be considered suitable for public display. Artworks we would consider unsuitable for display include:

- Works that raise concerns about public safety, the safety of Harris team members or the Harris building and its collections
- Anything that might provoke hatred, slander, pornography and political viewpoints

We encourage all art forms. This includes drawing, painting, print, photography, sculpture, contemporary art, digital art, fashion, illustration, experimental, traditional, finished, work in progress, sketchbooks, zines, the list is endless!

Open to all: We ask for all digital artwork featuring spoken word in any language to have subtitles. Please contact us if you need help on how to make your artwork more inclusive. We can provide help, for example: with how to consider deaf and visually impaired visitors.

Large artworks: There is no size restriction on artworks, however due to the space we have available and access through the building, if you have a large two-dimensional or freestanding three-dimensional work, it will need to be transported in the lift to Gallery One on the 2nd floor. The size of our lift is 235cm high x 93cm wide x 230cm deep. Please contact us before the handing in days if your work will not fit in the lift and you need help to get it up to Gallery One.

Electrical artworks: All works need an up-to-date Portable Appliance Test (PAT). A qualified electrician will be able to do the test for you. We will need to see the test certificate on handing in day.

Presenting your artwork

Two-dimensional artwork for display on a wall, such as a painting, print or drawing, should be in a frame. Unframed two-dimensional artworks must include a safe and secure method of display. If your work is unframed, it will be displayed at your own risk.

Mirror plates are the most secure way to hang framed works. To save time during installation, please attach mirror plates with screws to the back of your artwork before handing it in. See the image below:

Three-dimensional artworks must be freestanding, meaning they stand safely on the floor or on a plinth without the need of supports. Smaller three-dimensional works will be displayed on covered plinths or in display cases. Please tell us about any extra requirements on your Entry Form.

Insurance

We will take every care to ensure the safety of all artworks whilst they are in The Harris. However, The Harris does not take responsibility for any loss or damage and does not provide insurance for any artwork entered in the exhibition. If you are interested in getting your own insurance, then you can find out more about this here: www.a-n.co.uk/news/improved-insurance-policy and here: www.artistsunionengland.org.uk/public-liability-artists-insurance.

Selling your artwork

Every artist has the option to sell their work. Please indicate the sale price of your work on the Entry Form or write NFS (not for sale). You will be told if your work is sold. All work must remain on display until the exhibition closes.

The Harris will take a 30% commission, please keep this in mind when pricing your work. For example, if your work sells for £30 you will receive £21. Payments to artists will be made directly to your chosen bank account by Preston City Council after the exhibition closes.
